Subject: Re: Editorial in Anmore Times - December edition

The only thought I will offer on this topic is that in my experience the Times attempts to run, with some size limitations, all items that are submitted. When the public tires of an issue it tends not to be revisited. I think all contributions from Villagers should be printed as long as they fall within in legal bounds. The articles (good / bad and otherwise) are a reflection of the community.

I caution all not to be spreading misinformation. The liability of the Village for the daycare is a topic that is a constant source of misinformation. I feel that members of the community are " playing " the public by trying to scare them with words like liability. What if we were to just stick with the facts? Not terribly political but it would be helpful to Villagers.

As for all of these promises of court action, we are starting to sound like our neighbors to the South and that is certainly not something I am wishing for.

Happy Holidays all,

Kerri
